Automotive announces buyer for Rochelle

The Automotive Group announced today that E&T Controls, an Asaba Group company, has acquired the business in Rochelle, Illinois. E&T Controls took over full control of the facility, its employees and the parts contracts on July 1.

A majority of the management team stayed with the operations including the plant manager Tod Brachat.

"We've taken this action to increase our overall competitiveness," said Scott King, vice president and president, Powertrain and Specialty Controls Operations. "The products produced at the facility do not align with the Automotive Group's strategic direction and we believe we have found a buyer that will allow the facility and the business to thrive."

The automotive product lines produced at the facility include: vapor management valves, EGR valves, cruise control solenoids, Q3W solenoids, 4X4 lock actuators, EVOs, encapsulated sonic purge valves, fuel filler door latches, air and temperature sensors, freeze, cold and purge flow sensors, fuel level sensors and miscellaneous pressure control valves, solenoids, and transmission solenoids.
